

FUGITIVE NORVELL'S COMPANION IS CAPTURED

I. C. Freight House Was Destroyed By Fire This Noon

ONE OF FIRST BUILDINGS ON ROAD BURNED

Old Hand Hewn Timbers Fertile Fuel for the Flames

All of the available fire fighting equipment of the Dixon fire department was called upon shortly after 12 o'clock noon today when the Illinois Central freight station on Seventh street was discovered in flames. The origin of the fire could not be determined but swept by a strong wind the entire structure was soon a furnace of flames.

Two fire trucks were soon on the scene and four lines of hose played water on the brick structure, which is about 80 years old, having been the first building to be constructed by the Illinois Central when the railroad was opened through this section. The building was practically gutted by the flames which spread to almost every part of the structure. The dry timbers, which were for the most part hand hewn, presented a stubborn fire. The flames were ablaze when the first fire truck arrived and Chief Mitchell immediately called for additional hose.

Records Removed
Several volunteers manned lines of hose which were played on the building from all angles. There was only a small amount of freight in the building and the greater part of the records in the agent's office were removed. This section of the building was the least affected by the fire. The upper part of the structure was used for the storing of old records and those which were not destroyed by the flames were water soaked. Cars at the platform were removed by a train crew shortly after the fire was discovered which prevented their destruction.

Trains were halted in the railroad yards and police stopped traffic on Seventh street. Large crowds of spectators swarmed around the building and dense clouds of smoke were blown over the city.

Loss Undetermined
The building is of brick construction and the roof is covered with patent shingles over wood shingles, which prevented the flames from burning through the roof. The alarm was turned in shortly after 12 o'clock and firemen were still at the scene at 2 o'clock extinguishing small flames which broke out in the tinder dry timbers of the building and platform.

The loss could not be determined early this afternoon, but it was expected that the building would have to be rebuilt.

The explosion started a fire on the roof of the building which was quickly extinguished by the fire department with only minor damage to the building.

MAN WHO MADE FORTUNE FROM HOT DOGS DEAD

Harry M. Stevens, Who Created Delicacy, Died Wealthy

New York, May 4—(AP)—Harry Moseley Stevens, who created the American hot dog and built a fortune on it, is dead at 78.

The English-born caterer to the hungry appetites of millions of this country's sports fans succumbed to arterio-sclerosis at his home here yesterday after a long illness. Starting in a small baseball park at Niles, O., Stevens lived to see his business develop until the famous Stevens' Concessions covered every major league ball park, many of the largest race tracks, old Madison Square Garden and the new Grand Central Palace.

Stevens sold the first hot dog (so-called by the late Tad Dorgan, sports cartoonist) at the Polo Grounds in 1900. Sausages had been sold in rolls before that time but the hot sausage in the hot roll with mustard or pickle was his own idea. The new delicacy met with immediate acclaim from hungry sports followers and quickly developed into a national institution.

Peanuts Famous
Almost as well known were his double-jointed peanuts. Harry Payne Whitney once defined Stevens as the man "who parlayed a bag of peanuts into a million dollars." Stevens leased many acres of ground in Virginia where grew the peanuts and had them shipped to New York by the railroad.

Born in London, Stevens came to this country in 1882 and settled at Niles where his wife had friends. After working as an iron puddler and a book salesman for a while, (Continued on Page 2.)

Captain Hugh Burke and Noble Crew In Dire Danger

The drouth was broken yesterday afternoon, or at least temporarily suspended, in a very thorough manner, for three Dixon mariners, Dr. Hugh Burke, Ted Martinson and Raymond Segner, all merry sailormen bent on an afternoon's boating, put to sea yesterday in a canoe with a powerful outboard motor. They cruised up the beautiful Rock River, enjoying the warm May afternoon, carefree and without premonition of the disaster which was imminent. They did not know that they were an accident going some place to happen.

At a point opposite the state hospital grounds, well out from shore and in deep water, something occurred. The exact details are lacking, for the captain and the crew are mysteriously reticent. One version is that Captain Burke reversed all precedent by deserting the ship first, but that his act was entirely unpremeditated and involuntary. That report has it that, with the craft traveling at high speed, a sharp turn was made to avoid collision with a log in the water and that, with the quick turn, the Captain's person rose in the air, described a graceful arc and disappeared into the cold, cold water.

To Skipper's Rescue
Then, so the story goes, Mr. Segner dove into river to rescue the skipper, who was making aimless gestures and gurgling incoherent remarks and spouting quantities of river water. Pillows and cork filled cushions were thrown to him, it is reported, by Mr. Martinson who resolutely stayed by the ship, feeling that it was necessary for someone to keep the situation in hand by keeping control of the base of safety. But fate decreed that the crew, to the last man, must come to grief, because when the captain and his rescuer were maneuvered alongside the boat the effort to boost the drenched chief officer and Mr. Martinson found himself over the gunwale capsize the ship in the clutches of the wild waves, along with his shipmates.

Efforts to confirm the details of the near tragedy met with marked coldness on the part of Mr. Martinson this morning. He would not affirm or deny another version which was to the effect that Dr. Burke, singlehanded and with great courage and fortitude, swam the river, dragging his two companions to safety and dry land.

Aid Was Rushed
If you don't believe any of these stories you are at liberty to make up one of your own, since the principles in the affair decline to elucidate. One fact has been established, and that is that the garage establishment of Lee & Mack, on the east River Road, received a frantic SOS call yesterday afternoon and sent rescue expeditions post haste to the scene by sea and by land. Mac drove a car to the scene and Bill Lee rushed to their aid with a fast express boat. They found three very wet young men shivering on the bank and after bailing the water from the unlucky craft Bill loved them home. They could not get home under their own power because the motor was full of water.

The many friends of the popular trio are greatly pleased that the accident was no worse. Dr. Burke, a seasoned navigator, (this being the second season) has had a number of exciting and hair raising experiences during his nautical career. Friends are urging him to write a book on the perils a seaman must face.

THREATS WERE RECEIVED WITH RANSOM DEMAND

Grandmother of Missing June Robles Tells of Them

Tucson, Ariz., May 4—(AP)—Threats of death hung over two members of the Robles family today for failure to pay the $15,000 ransom they have been trying to give kidnapers for the last three days.

Revealing a hitherto undisclosed threat of the ransom note delivered to Fernando Robles a few hours after his daughter, June, was kidnapped April 25, the elderly grandmother of the six-year-old girl said death was decreed for both the $15,000 and the girl unless "They threatened to kill not only the baby but my Fernando if the money was not given," she told an interviewer.

Thinks June in Tucson
She expressed the conviction the kidnapping was the work of persons in Tucson, where she believes June is held.

"My son each night makes the trips those people ask him to. The money waits. What can we do? They do not come. If only they would come!"
While the contents of the original ransom note never have been publicly disclosed, authoritative sources said it demanded that the girl's father drive along a lonely road until certain signals were received when he was to toss the money out and continue without stopping.

Couldn't Get Money
"If only we could have kept the silence at first," Mrs. Robles said as tears dimmed her eyes. "It was terrible though, when the note said they must have $15,000 between 5 o'clock and 9 o'clock that night they took June. How could we get that much money with the banks closed?"
"They were stupid. They should have given us more time. But fear was on us to keep the silence, for they threatened to kill not only the baby but my Fernando if the money was not given."

Horner Signs Gas Tax Diversion Act Effective July 1

Springfield, Ill., May 4—(AP)—Governor Horner today signed the special session bill diverting one-third of the gasoline tax receipts of the state counties, and municipalities to the school distributive fund.

The gas tax diversion bill was the product of a deadlocked session of a legislature which has again become deadlocked over the NRA enforcement bill.

The assembly passed the diversion measure only after lengthy debate. It was backed by Horner's administration which opposed other plans to divert monies received from liquor taxes and fees and sales tax funds. The administration was unable, however, to pass the bill with an emergency clause with the result that the original intention of giving the schools gas tax money for one year was not attained.

Leo Ehnman, a third brother, was released when an assault and battery charge was dismissed. The three brothers were arrested early Tuesday morning following an altercation which was staged west of Amboy on the Rockyford road.

AIRWAYS ARE WATCHED FOR "WOODEN GUN"

Police Have Evidence Dillinger Seeks to Fly From Chicago

Chicago, May 4—(AP)—The airways out of Chicago were guarded today to keep John Dillinger from flying away.

Convinced that the elusive Indiana outlaw is still hiding somewhere in the underworld haunts, possibly wounded, and awaiting a chance to flee, the police were keeping a sharp lookout at the airports.

Investigators claimed they had traced members of the Dillinger gang from the north side, where one of his escape cars was found last Wednesday, to a south side hideout where they found evidence leading them to believe that Dillinger had planned to take to the air.

House-to-House Hunt
No other avenue of escape was left unguarded. The police were going over the city in the most highly organized man hunt in the history of Chicago. Members of a picked squad of 50 men were making a house-to-house search.

They have visited homes, apartments, flats, cottages, barns and even vacant buildings but without obtaining any information other than the indication that "Wooden Gun" John, believed hit by a police bullet sometime since his recent flight from the Little Bohemia resort near Mercer, Wis., was looking for a chance to fly away.

May Seize Friends
Police Captain John Steg, who has vowed his men would send Dillinger "back to Indiana in a wooden box," said at least 400 underworld friends of Dillinger are ready to aid him. They are under police observation, and many of them may be seized in a general roundup.

While the Chicago police were pushing their hunt for the slippery gunman, a Florida Sheriff launched a movement to increase the reward for his capture "dead or alive."

Asserting he would put up $25, Sheriff H. W. Lawrence of West Palm Beach issued a call for other Sheriffs over the nation to contribute a similar amount.

He estimated the fund would total $100,000 if other Sheriffs would cooperate.

Rosbaugh Unable to Identify Gypsy who Robbed Him of $60

Sheriff Fred Richardson went to Rockford yesterday where he met Sheriff Bell of Winnebago county and visited a gypsy camp located on an island near Camp Grant in Rock river south of Rockford. Joseph Rosbaugh of South Dixon accompanied Sheriff Richardson in an effort to identify a gypsy woman who last Tuesday robbed him of about $60, but without success. The camp was ordered dismantled and the campers to seek another location outside of Winnebago county.

It was reported here yesterday afternoon that a car in which one man, two women and several children were passengers, secured about $60 from a dentist at La-Moille last Tuesday afternoon. They were presumably the same crew that operated south of Dixon.

Crop Shortage Nearing Famine Likely Because of Drouth, Reduction

Crops Going Backward at Critical Rate Says Snow

Chicago, May 4—(AP)—With showers appearing only scattered areas, farmlands in mid-western states continued to bake under a merciless sun in summer like temperatures.

Sub-normal snowfall in most of the region last winter added to the lack of rainfall this spring has brought the situation to a crisis, where each moistureless day piles up enormous crop damage.

B. W. Snow, Chicago grain expert, asserted last night that no matter if rains do come now, crops have been cut short.

"Crops are going backward at a critical stage," he said. "The possibility that the government's crop reduction activities might bring shortage approaching a famine is now becoming a reality."

Yesterday's precipitation in the great plains states, in Minnesota and Iowa, was heavy only in restricted sections, particularly in Oklahoma and parts of South Dakota.

Downstate Illinois has had three straight years of subnormal rainfall and that aridity has been pronounced since last autumn.

Never before in their memory farmers said, had they been forced to haul stock water at this time of the year. Wells were reported to be drying up in Kane county.

Farmers based their hopes upon precedent—a light rainfall in April, heavy in May.

O'CONNELL IS RETURNED TO CHESTER CELL

His Companion Sick, Feet Blistered, Near Capture

Chester, Ill., May 4—(AP)—Prison guards today captured James O'Connell, who with Randol Eugene Stornell, life term kidnaper, fled Southern Illinois penitentiary a week ago, but Norvell, like a will o' the wisp, continued to evade poses in the desolate hill country near Alto Pass, Ill.

O'Connell, emaciated and on the verge of exhaustion, was surrounded at daybreak and surrendered without resistance. He wore a CCC camp uniform which he had stolen and when captured said he was trying to get a railroad to board a freight train.

The man, an Effingham, Ill., burglar, was brought to the prison hospital.

Warden Joseph Ragen said he believes Norvell, "brains" of the gang that kidnapped bank president August Luer at Alton, Ill., would be caught today.

Is Running Fever
"O'Connell told us Norvell is running a high fever and his feet are badly blistered," Warden Ragen said. "So we think it won't be long until Norvell is back inside the prison."

The Warden quoted O'Connell as saying he had eaten only three times since his escape from prison. Ragen said O'Connell told of spending three days with Norvell in a farm cabin in the Hickory Ridge area, south of here. There they were almost captured by a posse from Murphysboro, dodging into the woods as the group of deputies and state police approached.

Saw Time Often
From that time until they separated, O'Connell is reported saying, the pair hid in gulleys, caves and underbrush, seeing posse members a number of times.

O'Connell told prison authorities he separated from Norvell Tuesday, but they were reported together after that time when they obtained CCC uniforms at a farm near Ponoma.

Sheriff William Osburn of Murphysboro led an enlarged posse back into the Hickory Ridge district, expressing the belief the kidnaper was surrounded.

Norvell and O'Connell escaped from the prison last Friday by worming their way through a sewer outlet to the Mississippi river.

Youth Chloroformed Girl, Slashed Her Wrists and His Own

Physicians believe the tragedy occurred shortly after midnight and officers expressed the opinion that Ronald chloroformed and killed the girl and then attempted suicide. He may recover, doctors said.

An inquest will be held this afternoon.

Couple of Ozark Bloodhounds in on Killing of One Gunman and Capture of a Wounded Companion

Cabool, Mo., May 4—(AP)—A couple of Ozark bloodhounds were credited today with leading officers and possmen to a hideout where one gunman was killed and a companion wounded and captured.

The end of a 24-hour search for the men came near here late yesterday as the hounds had trailed the pair seven miles through dense underbrush. The dead man, tentatively identified by officers of the state highway patrol as Harry Williams, about 30, of Evanston, Ill., was killed after he had emptied his pistol at patrolmen and possmen.

His companion, who gave his name as Walter Allen, 18, Quincy, Ill., was shot in one arm.

Earlier in the day officers had arrested a woman who was seen with the men during a chase in which they fired at a patrolman and took pot shots at curious residents of Mountain View, Mo. The woman, believed to be William's wife, was captured a short distance from where the fugitives had abandoned their motor car.

A quantity of allegedly stolen merchandise was found in the machine.

IT RAINED TODAY
The rain was dripping all about, And yet my thought, dry-shod, ran out Among the birches, slender, set, Along the potted rivulet. It saw the blood-red blossom pale. The redappled moss and snuggled snail. The mushroom thrusting through the mold. The early cowslip's budded gold. A while it tarried there to bless Those living creatures' loveliness. Then under dripping bush and tree, My thought, dry-shod, returned to me.

Many Problems Will Be Talked Over at School

Sea food recipes from the Pacific Coast, hot bread secrets from the heart of Dixie, middle western ways of preparing roasts, favorite recipes and culinary information from every section of the United States—such is the knowledge gained by a traveling home economics expert.

And such is the fund of information and experience which Mary Egger, member of the staff of the famous Kelvin Kitchen, experimental kitchen of Kelvinator Corporation, Detroit, will bring to Dixon when she conducts the Evening Telegraph-Kelvinator Cooking School here next week, May 9-10-11.

In addition to the subjects of cooking, dessert making, marketing and meal planning, Miss Egger's school will be devoted to a discussion of other problems of the housewife as well. Entertaining, home decorations, floral etiquette, and numerous other home activities will be taken up. It was pointed out that the Kelvin Kitchen in its 1934 schools is making an effort to bring the women attending the latest news in every branch of home operation.

Additional interest has been given the Cooking School by the introduction of a Recipe Contest for Dixon women. Recipes are being submitted daily to the Contest Editor, at the Evening Telegraph as local women unearth favorite recipes and submit them in the hope of winning one of the cash prizes which have been hung up for winners in this contest.

Attention is called to the fact that the Recipe Contest closes May 9 at 2:30 o'clock. The recipes will then be turned over to local judges, who will select the winners to be announced the last day of the Cooking School at the Moose Hall.

New Books Dixon on Public Library

Becoming A Writer—Brande

Not only is the author's teaching supported by the most recent findings of psychologists, but it has provided reliable and useful training for dozens of beginners. This compact book should become an invaluable friend to the writer who has not yet found his way.

Settings And Costumes of the Modern Stage—Kommissarzhevski

This book is one of the most complete ones available on the subject of stage settings and costume. It reveals the enormous influence exerted, since the turn of the century, by the bewildering succession of "isms" that has so shaped and colored the whole phenomenon of modern art. The book contains many color illustrations and should be of special value to teachers handling dramatic productions, for it contains a wealth of inspiring material.

Queen Elizabeth—Neale

Neale has done for Elizabeth what Zweig did for Marie Antoinette. It is an interesting narrative well told and hard to get away from. It moves along. The reader is likely to forget the delightful style in following the story. It is a style not only delightful but with distinction in restraint. Behind those careful, terse phrases is more than the author has time to stop and tell us, and we are not displeased at that.

Book of Fencing—Case

The work is arranged so skillfully that a fencer might easily read it for entertainment, and still afford the student, the teacher, such information as each desires. It is illustrated not only with instructive diagrams of fencing positions but pictures of famous fencers from all parts of the world.

Europe, a History of Ten Years—Buell

As a result of the war, writes Mr. Buell, certain states such as England and France set about repairing the damage without making any profound changes in their social or political structure; while other states, such as Germany, Italy, Russia, and the new states of Europe, made sweeping changes. It is these changes which the author discusses, attempting to determine the present conditions of the people in those countries.

Stories in Stone—Lee

A fascinating explanation of the earth's development as we read it in the record of the rocks. The wonderful revelations of the geologists are demonstrated in stories of the Grand Canyon, the Petrified Forest, Mesa Verde, Mammoth Cave, and many others.

Common People of Ancient Rome—Abbott

Excellent reference works for students, giving the social and political life in these ancient cities.

Three Little Pigs—Disney

Almost overnight Three Little Pigs has changed from just another fairy tale to a national institution. The guiding genius of Walt Disney added just the touches needed a new swing to the story, superb illustrations, and lyrics which have captured everyone. For children 6 and up.

Big Bad Wolf and Little Red Riding Hood—Disney

The additions to the classic tale are chiefly of a nature to make it more comic and less cruel. The wolf doesn't eat Grandma though he certainly wants to and no woodsman appears to kill the wolf. Instead, the practical Third Little Pig finds an unusual solution and the wolf is routed in an undignified and distinctly hilarious fashion.

Stamps of Many Lands—Rothschild

"Postage stamps," the author says, "are really publicity in picture form, for the nation that issues them." Each country puts on its stamps pictures of things of which it is proudest—its most beautiful rivers, flowers, green men, buildings and works of art. With each page of stamps he has written a page of facts about the country from which the stamps came, so that you can have the whole story at a glance. From the introduction—Breathes there the man with soul so dead

Who never to himself hath said I have no hobby. If such there breathe, go, mark him well. Despite his titles, power, and pelf,

Women Wearing Aprons

WOMEN wearing aprons
Make me wonder why I've no squares of gingham With wide bows to tie.

WOMEN washing teacups
Sometimes make me wish I could fill a cupboard. Bright dish after dish.

WOMEN hearing children
Chanting rhythmic prayers Just as though God listened In a room upstairs—

WOMEN who croon stories
As the child heads nod— Have they something lovely I have missed, dear God?

The wretch, concentrated all in self— Would be much happier if he could say, I have a hobby.

These messages from Bermuda, Mexico and Japan, were read by Mesdames Carpenter, Hobbs and Morris.

BE PREPARED TO BACK UP YOUR INDIGNATION.

Moral indignation is a worthy emotion, but its cost runs pretty high, sometimes. Before we indulge in very much of it, it's a good idea to stop and figure out just how much it is likely to cost us.

Here's a case in point—the present embroglio over Japan's new policy in China.

The Japanese have announced what amounts to a protectorate over China. They have declared that no other nation has a right to loan China money, send her technical instructors, or provide her with equipment which might be useful in time of war, if Tokio happens to disapprove.

Their steady encroachment on Chinese sovereignty, begun several years ago, has come out into the open. Unless all signs fail, the full subjugation of a great nation is about to proceed, with the consequent elimination of many American rights and privileges.

Here is a development which has aroused a good deal of indignation in the United States. But before we let this indignation get too strong, we ought to look at the balance sheet.

How much are we willing to pay for the privilege of denouncing this newest bit of Japanese aggression?

Are you, for instance, as a citizen, so indignant about it that you are willing to go across the Pacific—or send your son—to strangle in the sick-bay of a foundering cruiser, or to roast in the heat of a fireproof that has been wrecked by a torpedo, or to stop a machine gun bullet somewhere along a beach 10,000 miles away?

In other words, are you indignant enough to be ready to go to war for your indignation?

If you are, then you are probably entitled to express your indignation as vehemently as you please. But if you aren't—and it is doubtful if more than handful of Americans are—it's wise to reflect on the price that we might be called on to pay for a full expression of our indignation.

There is no danger of war in this situation if we keep our heads and leave a solution of these difficulties to the slow, inemotional, and unexciting processes of diplomacy.

But we could pay a very heavy price if we went off half-cocked and spread our moral indignation all over the Far East.

LAST OF OLD CAVALRY.

It gives one a sort of old and grown-up feeling to read that the U. S. War Department has ordered the cavalry to put away its sabres.

The War Department points out that armored cars, tanks, and so on are replacing the horse throughout the mounted service, and that a cavalryman sitting in an auto has little use for a sabre; nevertheless, the thought that these jingling riders with their polished blades are now officially out of date comes as a bit of a surprise.

Cavalrymen without sabres—or, for that matter, without even horses! Shades of Attila and Bedford Forrest, of Custer and Ney and all the other captains who led galloping troopers into battle beneath a wringing arc of gleaming steel!

We must be getting old, if we have lived into a day when armies have no use for such things.

It's love match, not an experiment in my monkey gland technique.—Dr. Serge Voronoff, 68-year-old gland expert marrying a 21-year-old girl.

It would not be kind to mankind to return a human being to the world completely and irrevocably impaired in his mental actions.—Dr. Robert E. Cornish of California, who restored a dead dog to life.

The joint responsibility of the civilized world is embodied in the League of Nations.—Sir Austen Chamberlain.

Men are like little boys—when they are tired of being naughty they are glad to come home.—Mary Pickford.

words to express them.—William C. Bullitt, U. S. Ambasador to Russia.

The Lord stood with me and strengthened me and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion.—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., acquitted of the charge of violating the corrupt practices act.

Leaping to the Front at Pimlico Opening

Thousands who turned out for the opening program of the Maryland Jockey Club at Pimlico, Md., were rewarded with exciting track competition, of which this scene is typical. Mrs. John Hay Whitney's "Quick March", with C. Engen up, was the winner in the Patapsco Steeplechase.

Living Our Everyday Lives

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

Of his friend Grenfell, to whom death came quickly, Maurice Barling said: "He leaped the golden stile." Others may climb slowly, if not painfully, the stile which he took with a bound; but they are not lost to us. Nor are we lost to them, as we often fear.

Who does not love the poignant poem of Emily Dickenson in which she asks us, "If I shouldn't be alive when the robin comes, give the one in red cravat a memorial crumb." She cannot thank us, "being just asleep," but she will try to do it with her "granite lip."

To read those lines is to hope that the robin, whom she loved and fed, did go sometimes to her resting place, and sprinkle the crisp autumn air with his blithe song. And that someone gave him a crumb of kindness for the joy he gave the lovely sleeper.

Yes, they pass beyond our knowledge, but surely not beyond their knowledge of us. At least we hope not, and here is a little reason for my hoping. How comes it that, in our dreams, we can sometimes see a face long turned to dust, not merely recall it?

One may say it is because we see it through the eye of memory. But in that case, how is it that in dreaming of the dead, we often see —I have many times—a "turn" of the head, a tiny furrow on the forehead, a wrinkle or a dimple, which in our waking moments, we had forgotten, if indeed we ever noticed it at all?

We should expect just the reverse to be true. If it be said that our subconscious sleeping memory is more accurate and vivid than our waking recollection, why is it so? A miracle, we should think, if we could sort out one wave of the sea among a million; and this vision of the dead is surely little less than a miracle.

If, as Maeterlinck taught us in "The Blue Bird" the dead live when we remember them, why is it not true when turned the other way? Often I feel that my best

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The girl with bells on all her toes and fingers said, "Well, goodness knows, I'm glad to see some little friends. How would you like a ride?"

"My horse, you see, is very tame.
Why, even he is glad you came. I am sure there is room enough for both of you upon his hide."

"But, are you sure he will not run away? That would not be much fun," said Doty. "If you think it is safe, we have a dandy plan."

"Our Tiny friends are near at hand and we both think it would be grand to give them all a big surprise. We'll do it, if we can."

"You mean, to ride my funny horse would tickle them a lot?
Of course you can. I'll hike along with you so I can see the fun."

"Just hop aboard, I will lead the beast. I'll gladly do that much at least. Now, don't get scared one single bit. I will not let him run."

"They soon were traveling over the ground. The bells made a merry sound and shortly they all heard a voice cry out, "Well, look who's here!"

It was Scouty. He ran up and cried, "How did you get this dandy ride?" "This sweet girl let us have it," answered Goldy. "She is a dear!"

When every Tiny had a trip the girl said, "Why don't you all slip up to the palace of old King Cole? He is a merry man."

"He'll treat you nice as nice can be. Just tell him that you all know me." And when she pointed out the palace, off the Tinsies ran.

When King Cole saw them, he cried out, "Ah ha! Some visitors no doubt. I'm very glad you came, because I want my pipe and bowl."

"Wee Doty and wee Goldy cried, "We'll bring them right here to your side." And when they did, it pleased the king. He shouted,
"Bless my soul!"

"The other Tinsies entertain the king in the next story."

Daily Health Talk

ASTHMA

It is roughly estimated that three in every thousand persons suffer from asthma. This disease condition is therefore not high in its prevalence, nor important from the viewpoint of mortality. On the other hand, it is commonly a disease which makes life a burden to the sufferer, and calls for much medical and nursing care.

The outstanding symptom of asthma is the patient's inability to breathe properly. The patient suffers a constriction of narrowing in the bronchi and smaller branches of the bronchial path, which interferes with the easy flow of the air.

A sense of dyspnea or shortness of breath is the most troublesome feature of the disease.

Precisely what is the mechanism of this condition is still subject to discussion. Asthma is in technical language called an allergic reaction. In a rough sort of way allergy can be defined as an abnormal reaction in the body following ex-posure to certain foreign substances.

The normal individual, for example, when exposed to feather dust, does not suffer any marked disturbances in his respiration. The asthmatic, or, as he might be called, allergic individual, however, when exposed to feather dust, may promptly suffer an attack.

Two factors enter into the asthma picture. One of these is hereditary, and the other is the accident of exposure. Many studies on the families of asthma sufferers reveal that succeeding generations were prone to asthma which can be transmitted from parent to offspring.

Given the predisposition, the full-blown case of asthma becomes an actuality when the sensitive individual is exposed to a provoking substance.

These provoking substances, called specific causes of asthma, may be inhaled from the air eaten as food, and taken internally as drugs.

"Put" and "Call"

A "put" is a contract or written agreement binding the issuer to receive from the holder stock named in the agreement within a certain time at a certain price if holders shall so command. A "call" is a similar contract binding the issuer to deliver to the holder the stock named in contract if holder shall demand or call for the stock. A "put" and "call" is a double option of being able to buy or sell according to which transaction will yield a profit. A speculator who has bought stocks is long on them, or in other words is a "bull"; one who is short of stock is a "bear." A short is one who has sold stock which he does not possess and has borrowed the stock for delivery to the buyer. The object of selling short is to repur-chase subsequently at a lower figure.

Copper Countries

Butte, Mont., is the richest and most important copper producing center in the world, the Anaconda mines being the largest. The large-est known deposits of native copper are in the Keweenaw peninsula of northern Michigan. Chile, South America, is said to have the largest copper mine in the world and also the greatest known copper reserves, though the copper reserves of the Belgian Congo in Africa form a close second.

Many Bats Carry Bugs

Many bats as well as swallows and pigeons are infested with a species of insect that greatly resembles the ordinary house bug.
But according to the bureau of entomology, these bugs belong to an entirely different species and do not ordinarily attack human beings.

Denies They're "Test Tube Twins"

Revelations by Dr. Frances Seymour, New York physician, bringing synthetic children into the world, brought a denial from one of her pa-toria were "test tube" progeny. Mrs. Lauricella and her children are here shown at their Lawrence, Long Island, home.

When Riley Voted

James Whitcomb Riley didn't take much stock in politics but there was one election in which a young man who was a very close friend of his was running for county attorney, and Riley was so anxious to help with his vote that he made it a special point to go to the polls on election day. It took the poll some time to understand the intricacies of the ballot, but finally he marked it up to suit his ideas. The following day he was telling a group of neighbors what a time he had had marking the ballot properly. After he had explained it all, one of the neighbors said: "Why, Jim, if that's the way you marked the ballot, you voted for the other fellow."

ARE YOU NERVOUS, DIZZY?

Mrs. Elizabeth Lapping
of 20-5th Ave., Danville, Ill., says: "I was nervous, had frequent dizzy spells and headaches, sleepless nights, my back bothered me a great deal, there was an awful misery across my kidneys most all the while.
I had no appetite, lost weight and my complexion became sallow. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription built me up. I regained my strength and the nervousness disappeared."

GOOD THOUGHTS

God should be the object of all our desires, the end of all our actions, the principle of our affections, and the governing power of our whole souls.

—Massillon

Whatever good there is in man, is divine.

—John Ruskin

Whatever dims thy sense of truth, Or stains thy purity, Though light as breath of summer air, O count it sin to thee.

Preserve the tablet of thy thoughts From every blemish free, For our Redeemer's holy faith Its temple makes with thee.

—Mary W. Hale

Since God is good, He has within himself no element of evil. What then of Man's character? It surely cannot be different from the perfect Supreme Being whom he images forth. Man's real character is the true identity or selfhood which is the image and likeness of God.

—The Christian Science Monitor

So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him... And God saw every thing that he had made, and behold, it was very good.

—Genesis I

From harmony, from heavenly harmony, This universal frame began:

From harmony to harmony Through all the compass of the notes it ran, The diapason closing full in Man.

—Dryden

FIRST M. E. CHURCH

Dr. Gilbert Stansell, Pastor
The month of May is Loyalty Month in the Dixon Methodist church. The department directors and the pastor worked out the plan of the month of special emphasis and submitted it to the official board last Monday evening. It was adopted.

The plan calls for as nearly 100% attendance at the four Sunday morning services as possible. The large committee on Parish Cultivation, A. N. Richardson, chairman and Miss Jean Wilson secretary, is working to bring this about. Through its publicity channels the board urges every member to give every possible assistance to the committee and help make the enterprise a success.

The pastor will deliver four special sermons, the music will be unusual, the fellowship as good as possible under the conditions and all is being done to reward everyone for the extra effort of being in his and her place these four Sunday mornings.

This movement is the first item on the program of a three-year celebration of the founding of Dixon Methodist.

A very intense program has been prepared, especially for the morning service at 10:45. The pastor will deliver four sermons in keeping with the main ideas of the month. An earnest effort is being made by the Visitation Committee to call to the attention of all the Methodists the purpose of the Loyalty Month movement as the first item of the three year celebration of the founding of the church a century ago. The committee is attempting to secure the attendance of all of the one thousand members each of the four of May. In this month falls certain outstanding days in the church calendar, as Ascension Day, Mother's Day, Pentecost Day and Memorial Day. It is a rich and beautiful month. The church will be filled with happy worshippers.

The church school will convene at 9:45. Everyone whose name is on the roll of any class is urged to be present on time Sunday morning. Those who have no school connections are heartily invited.

The Fellowship League will meet at 5 o'clock, and Mrs. Alice Beede will be the speaker. The Epworth League will meet at 6 o'clock, and the lesson will be put over by a group of young people under the leadership of the program committee.

Eye Can Adapt Itself to Variation in Light Power

The truth of the statement that one does not see with the eyes but through the agency of the eyes is explained by a writer in Hygeia Magazine.

The size of the retinal image of any object is based on the visual angle which it subtends, so that a 4-inch object at 50 inches, a 6-inch object at 100 inches and a 9-inch object at 150 inches appear to have the same dimensions. This phenomenon is not yet explained.

Also affecting the power of vision is the change of acuity, or clearness, with illumination. Why a person can see better with higher candle power is also not explained by science, but between daylight and night the eye can adapt itself to a variation in light intensity ranging from 10,000 candle power to a millionth of 1 candle power.

The difference in brightness between an object and its background, that is its contrast, and the duration of exposure are also important factors in determining visibility.

Glare is produced by too great contrast in illumination. Summer day light may reach 4,000 candle power without producing glare, with its ensuing discomfort; but when the various parts of the retina are equally stimulated, as is the case when a strong automobile head light is seen at night, glare results.

The mystery of the clairvoyant is, after a fashion, scientifically realized by the discovery that the x-rays are readily perceived through closed eyelids by the dark-adapted eye, and lead letters brought in contact with the closed lid are seen as black letters on a bright background.

DIXON HIGH TO HAVE SECTIONAL COMPETITION

Commercial Pupils of Several Schools Here Tomorrow

By BRADLEY MOLL

The high school will be the scene of the annual sectional commercial contest Saturday when the Dixon typing teams will compete against the typing teams of 27 other schools. The largest number ever to be entered in this type of sectional contest.

By virtue of their win in the district contest two weeks ago the Dixon typing teams will go into the battle, the other Dixon teams were eliminated at that time. The typing team No. 1 will be composed of the following, Avis Beede, Ruby Jensen and Genevieve Reitzel, typing No. 2 team will be composed of the following, Hazel Rhodes, Carolyn Schick and LaVerna Tucker.

In the individual typing two contest Hazel Rhodes of Dixon will do her bit to bring home the bacon for the local high school. For the individual open typing contest Dixon has two entries, namely Carolyn Schick, and Hazel Rhodes.

Some of the schools that will be competing against Dixon will be Bradford, Buda, Genoa, Sycamore, Thompson, Stockton, Hononegah, Sterling, Spring Valley, Polo, Galena, Savanna, Rochelle, Princeton, LaSalle, LaMoille, Wyanet, Lena, Mt. Morris, Tiskilwa, Kirkland, Pecatonica, Belvidere, Ohio, South Beloit and Standard. The winners of first place at Dixon will go to Champaign to represent their respective schools in the state commercial contest.

Track Meet Also
On the same day as the sectional commercial contest, the Dixon track team will journey to Mendota to compete in the conference track meet which will start in the early afternoon of that day.

The team from Dixon will look good in the competition. They beat the Mendota boys in a meet last Tuesday, and left little to be desired in the meet against Rock Falls.

With Plannigan of Dixon breaking for a good season start, and with Padgett in trim for state competition it looks as though Dixon should go good against their traditional basketball and football rivals in the conference. It is uncertain just who will enter teams, but all the regular conference schools including DeKalb, Rochelle, Belvidere, Sterling and Dixon have been invited to compete. The sectional track meet will be held at Freeport a week from Saturday.

Golfers Beaten
The golf team which went to Rockford Tuesday was beaten in medal play by a score of 2-10, which on the surface would indicate a bad defeat but when one compares the one-point difference in some of the scores one can realize that the Dixon boys went good for their first match play. The Dixon team has high hopes of beating their rivals when they return the visit to Dixon later in the season.

The Statue of Liberty
The Statue of Liberty is of bronze, iron and brass. Forty persons can stand comfortably in the hollow head, and the torch will hold 12. Enthusiastic ones climb up the inside of the figure by 508 steps. A ladder of 54 rounds extends up the right arm. In 1916 the New York World raised money by popular subscription for a lighting system to illumine the statue at night, and President Wilson gave the signal for turning on the current. It is taller than the Colossus of Rhodes by 105 feet.

WM. H. WOODIN, FORMER HEAD OF TREASURY DIES

Frail Financier Passed Away Last Evening
In New York

New York, May 4.—(AP)—William H. Woodin, the frail little secretary of the Treasury who helped pilot the nation through the 1933 banking crisis, is dead.

He succumbed last night to complications which followed a throat infection. He would have been 66 years old May 27.

The throat trouble developed last summer and forced him to leave the Treasury post in November.

When told of Woodin's death, President Roosevelt said at Washington: "I am deeply shocked and distressed by the passing of my dear friend."

An industrialist at the expense of a boyhood ambition to be a doctor, Woodin turned to music after his 60th birthday and achieved note as a composer.

A spring rain, reminiscent of one of his best known musical compositions—"Spring is in the Air"—pattered outside his hospital window as death came. A warm friend of Roosevelt, he talked affectionately of the President shortly before the end.

A Picturesque Officer
Woodin made a picturesque cabinet officer. He liked to play the guitar—and he did it well. Postage stamps, prints and objects of art, all of which he collected, were other hobbies of the mild-mannered man who guided the Treasury through grave times.

He had a boyish spirit that prevailed no matter how solemn the occasion and he smiled his way through his enormous tasks in Washington.

The national banking holiday prevailed from the hour he took office. He worked at the job night and day. After a few hours sleep he was back at the White House each morning, always smiling and cheerful, talking over the next move with the President.

There came a time when the name of Woodin was mentioned on lists obtained from J. P. Morgan & Company as among those offered stocks at preferred prices. A demand went up for his resignation. He went to the President and offered it.

Resignation Not Desired
Roosevelt took him on a cruise down the Potomac river over that week-end and made clear his resignation was not desired. But the then Treasury Secretary came back still insisting, lest he embarrass the President.

When his health weakened, Mr. Woodin again tried to resign. Roosevelt wouldn't listen, saying Woodin had done "a grand job." The President granted him an indefinite leave of absence, hoping he could return to the office.

But his health did not improve sufficiently and he resigned January 1. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Acting Treasury Secretary, was sworn in as his successor.

In his last hours Woodin talked frequently of Roosevelt, whom he called "Governor."

"From what he said, he was extremely fond of the President," said Dr. Robert Buckley, one of the physicians.

"He seemed to believe he was conferring with the President, saying: 'Yes, Governor, No, Governor I don't think so, Governor.'"

After leaving the cabinet office Woodin went to Arizona for his health. He returned to New York on the Roosevelt administration's first birthday, full of praise for its acts.

A hemorrhage sent him to the Manhattan Eye and Ear Hospital April 2. He improved somewhat, then took a turn for the worse. He lapsed into unconsciousness yesterday afternoon and died at 5:15 P. M. (EST).

Mrs. Woodin and one daughter, Mrs. Mary Minor, were at the bedside. Two other daughters, Mrs. O. F. Harvey of New York and Mrs. Wallace W. Roe of Cincinnati, and a son, William H. Woodin, Jr., who is in Arizona for his own health, survive.

Burial probably will be at Berwick, Pa., the family home. Dr. Jerome Wagner gave the cause of death as nephritis and uremia, following upon the throat infection. Several specialists were called into consultation during his illness.

Flight of the Albatross

The albatross, notable for its smooth, gliding flight with almost motionless wings for long distances requires a fairly strong wind for such a performance. When the wind drops it begins to flap its wings much more frequently and is often left behind by a steamer.

Cellophane

Cellophane is made from wood pulp sheets by a secret process; it is described as viscose solidified in thin sheets instead of in threads, as in rayon.

Under Long Dry Spell

Since the middle of the age of reptiles, a period of something like 150,000,000 years, Mongolia has never been submerged. In those early ages much of Europe and America was rising and sinking above the sea. Because of this incredibly long history of continuous dry land in Central Asia, a record of continental animal life is preserved there as in no other part of the world.

Lunch or Luncheon

Lunch and luncheon are interchangeable words. Either of the two sentences—"Mr. Jones is out at luncheon" and "Mr. Jones is out at lunch"—is correct. Usage depends entirely upon personal preferences. —Literary Digest.

Determining Man's Attitude

Throughout the course of human history man's attitude has been determined by the intellectual and moral influences which have been impressed upon each individual's mind by the community in which he lived.

SANDERS QUILTS CHAIRMANSHIP OF COMMITTEE

Republicans at Odds Over Election of His Successor

Washington, May 4.—(AP)—A three-cornered struggle for control of the Republican party was precipitated today by the resignation of Everett Sanders as chairman of the Republican National Committee.

The contest crystallized overnight into a push between the G. O. P. old guard, the forces of Herbert Hoover and the demand of leaders in the congressional group now in power for "new blood." The names of James E. Watson of Indiana, former senate leader, and Frank O. Lowden of Illinois were spoken frequently today as being outstanding men among the old regulars for the party chairmanship.

On Capitol Hill, however, the survivors of the 1932 Roosevelt landslide who are seeking re-election this fall talked about "new blood." The congressional minority is far from united on a chairmanship selection. One recognized leader asserted the ten to fifteen men of the old organization already mentioned could be definitely ruled out.

Leaves Field Open
This statement was reflected in New York, where Charles D. Hilles, Republican Committeeman from that state, asserted the retirement of Sanders "leaves the field open."

There had been a definite effort within the party to put off any fight over leadership. Some had suggested that no new choice be made until after the 1936 convention when a presidential nominee had been selected.

A letter from Sanders to members of the committee, made public last night, apparently put a definite end to that. He said:

"I have decided to tender my resignation as chairman of the Republican National Committee, to take effect upon the election of my successor."

Glassburn Speaker at Meeting Today in Davenport, Iowa

J. L. Glassburn of the local Chevrolet agency went to Davenport this afternoon where he is to address a meeting of dealers of that state, asserted by H. U. Davenport, zone, which includes Dixon, at a meeting held this evening at the Hotel Blackhawk. "Quality features, value and economy of the Chevrolet Master Six and the expansion of business" is the subject of the Dixon dealers' talk.

Referring to the Chevrolet Master Six, Mr. Glassburn told the dealers:

"The best evidence of the truth of Chevrolet claims is in the fact that so many people chose this car year after year. Again and again have we seen it proven that anybody who will drive the new Chevrolet five miles, he will never be satisfied with any other car in the same price class. Consumer preference is the ultimate test of everything and the great jury of the motoring public gives Chevrolet an overwhelming endorsement."

"Our sales and service organization is back of every Chevrolet delivered by us. Courtesy, friendliness, fair-dealing and efficiency are featured in the Dixon sales and service departments, and these are responsible for the record breaking sales. Great credit is given to the members of our splendid efficient sales force."

Scales Reveal Ages of Fish, Authority Claims

"There is a widespread belief that fish grow to be of vast age and live for more than a century, but this belief in the longevity of fish fades under the microscope when the fish's actual age is read from its scales," says an authority in charge of Great Lakes fisheries investigation for the United States bureau of fisheries, who explains that a fish's age may be read from its scales like the age of a tree from its rings.

He says that only a few years ago some "muskies" scales were sent to him for age determination. The fish weighed 40 pounds and was 52 inches long, and oldtimers in the community gave it an age of from ten to one hundred years. The scales showed it to be about nineteen years old. Some works on natural history published in the Eighteenth and Nineteenth century tell of carp one hundred or one hundred and fifty years old and of pickerel more than two hundred years old, but these accounts are characterized as myths.

The fish expert says that he has found the average age of Saginaw bay herring to be less than five years, although these fish have been known to live as long as eleven years. Most of the whitefish taken in gillnets in the fall of the year on the North Grounds off Alpena are seven and eight years old; yet the maximum reported for this species is twenty-seven years; the oldest fish are not always the largest. As in the case of man, there are giants and dwarfs among fishes.

Condor Is Not as Fierce

or as Large as Thought
The condor, largest bird of South America and once believed to be the largest bird in existence, was the subject of many fearsome tales, but eventually cold facts served to deprive it of much of its awesomeness.

Until the bird had been caught and actually examined it was believed to have a wing spread of as much as 40 feet and was said to be capable of seizing and carrying off lambs, young children and even small calves.

However, once a condor had been captured, it was discovered that its claws were blunt, short and incapable of grasping and carrying away any of the victims traditionally claimed for it.

Even its size was found exaggerated. The California vulture is its equal and other birds of greater size have been found.

The condor is a sound sleeper, in fact so much so that it is possible to creep up behind it and capture it by throwing a noose over its head.

For food, it depends largely on carrion, but does kill young animals feeding on the carcass on the ground.

Fox Hound's Fine Sense of Small Puzzles Hunter

A mystery to all hunters is how a hound, striking the track of a fox in the night, can determine in which direction the fox was running, but any good fox hound can do that and do it unerringly. It is not by any imprint of the fox's paws upon the ground, for a fox hound will unravel that mystery when the ground is frozen and when not even a microscope could find the trace of a track. It is done by the sense of smell, but how? Some contend that the dog muzzles around on the ground until he locates the position of the four tracks and can tell by their relation to each other in which way the fox was going. Others think the hound has such a fine sense of smell that, even an hour after the fox has passed, the hound can distinguish the slight difference in strength of scent between fore part of the track, where the paw hit the ground first and remained longest, and the rear part of the paw, which touched the earth for the shortest time.

Whatever that mysterious sense may be, a dog, finding a trail, will nose around in it, thrusting his muzzle first in one invisible track and then in another, making short, quick dashes this way and that along the trail, but soon, as sure as fate, he discovers which way the fox was traveling. Then he points his nose to the sky and utters a long, quivering, blood-stirring cry that comes across the night in triumphant confidence.

Donna of the Big Top by BEULAH POYNTER

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DONNA GABRIEL and MADELINE SIDDAL, who call themselves "The Gabriel Sisters" are trapeze performers with Renfro's circus. CON DAVID, the animal trainer, is in love with Donna who regards him merely as a friend. Madeline, in love with Con, has been flirting with NED THURFORD, boss circusman.

When Madeline's grandfather, AMOS SIDDAL, asks her to spend the week-end on his farm she persuades Donna to take her place. Donna is much attracted by BILL SIDDAL, Madeline's cousin.

Two weeks later Donna falls from the trapeze and is taken to a hospital, badly injured. Madeline sends word to Bill that "Madeline is ill. She leaves a note telling Donna to continue the impersonation until she is well. Then Madeline goes on with the circus."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VIII

BILL SIDDAL was not conscious that he had been praying all that long, bitter night as he sat in the shabby, ill-ventilated day coach in a train that seemed to be drawn by slow-footed oxen instead of a steam engine.

Madeline's letter had been not only a shock but an eye-opener. Until he had learned of the accident he had not analyzed his feeling toward the girl he believed to be his cousin. Her visit had been a never-to-be-forgotten event in his colorless life. Her charm and beauty had made an indelible impression, but he had not realized that he loved her until he read the letter telling him of her danger. How much danger he dared not think about.

Wishing to spare his grand-uncle suspense and worry, he made an excuse to get away, intending to keep all knowledge of the accident from the old man, if possible, until Madeline was on the road to recovery.

Haggard-eyed, unshaven, and wearing his work clothes with stout cowhide boots, he did not present a very prosperous appearance when he strode into the hospital that bright morning at eight o'clock.

"Is she alive?" the young man demanded across the desk.

Assured that she was, Bill sank weakly into a chair and for several seconds seemed unable to speak.

"But she can not be moved at present," Dr. Cotton said. "Not for two weeks at least."

"I—I may see her?"

"Surely, Miss Wyatt—take Mr. Sidral to 39."

Donna was asleep when they stepped into the hushed chamber. Bill crossed to the bedside and looked down at the white, pinched face. It required a tremendous effort not to bend down and kiss that face, not to murmur the love that surged through him like a tumultuous torrent.

"You must go now," the nurse said when he had stood motionless for several minutes.

"She—is going to live?"

"Of course. But she must not have any excitement."

Below Dr. Cotton was waiting for him. "Miss Gabriel—er—the other sister said that you—it's customary to pay hospital bills in advance, but the circumstances were such that—"

"I understand," Bill said gravely. "I will take care of Miss Sidral's expenses." He drew a check.

He drew a check.

He drew a check.

He drew a check.

He drew a check.

He drew a check.

He drew a check.

"When you're better I'm going to take you to the farm with me," Bill said.

book from his pocket, asked the amount and filled in a blank.

IN all his 26 years Bill had never known a sick day. Possibly it was his own virile health that had prompted him to take up the study of medicine. All that he had learned about it was forgotten now in the flood of relief that swept over him. Madeline would recover! He did not question Dr. Cotton's diagnosis, nor his statement that she could not be moved for two weeks. If she had to stay, then Bill would stay.

Not until hours later did the fact of their close relationship disclose his dreams of their future together. Then, like a specter, this fact arose to haunt him. Even if Madeline loved him could they face a community that would look upon their marriage as a sin? So long as Grandfather Sidral lived, Bill knew he was tied to the farm and the environs of Lebanon.

At noon Donna awakened and the nurse informed her that her "cousin" had come.

"Cousin? I—I haven't any cousin."

"Mr. Sidral, dear. You were asleep when he arrived. He said he would be back this afternoon."

Vaguely Donna understood the words. But she was still too fogged to understand the real meaning of the statement. The knowledge that Bill Sidral cared enough to come to see her caused a warm glow in her heart and brought tears to her eyes.

"My—my sister?" she managed. "That's just too bad, but she had to go on with the circus."

"Yes, of course, she had to go on," Donna fought to smile bravely.

"She left a letter for you, but I don't think you are strong enough to read it yet. Shall I read it to you?"

It was no premonition of what the letter contained that prompted Donna to refuse the offer.

"Just give the letter to me," she said. "I know what she says."

MADLINE'S letter was clutched in Donna's damp fist when Bill came the second time. It slipped from her fingers to the floor as her eyes met his. His face, inexpressibly dear, seemed covered with a thick haze that cleared, then became more opaque. He came closer and she could see nothing except his eyes—kind, compassionate, loving.

Neither spoke for a full minute. Bill dared not say what he wanted to and could find no words for anything else.

"I can't shake hands," Donna laughed tremulously. "I've a broken right wing."

"I know, and I'm so sorry. If there is anything—"

"It's wonderful of you to come. Just wonderful!" Tears choked her voice. "How did you know?"

"Your partner wrote me. I took the first train. If I'd been able to get a plane I'd have been here sooner."

"You are kind, oh, so kind."

"Are you suffering—much?"

"Not now—" Donna's heart was singing. "Not since you came into this room. Your voice, your smile, your presence makes up for everything."

The nurse placed a chair beside the bed, then discreetly stepped out of the room. Bill sat down, placed his hand on Donna's and held it gently. "When you are better I'm going to take you to the farm with me," he said.

"I'd love that. But I must get to work."

back to the circus as soon as possible. Don't think me vain, but the act needs me."

"The act will have to do without you for a long time. You've had a close shave. Dr. Cotton told me that at first he was certain you had a concussion. That could have been very serious."

"Nothing matters so long as my back is all right. It is, isn't it? They didn't tell me it was, just to bolster my courage?" Panic seized her.

"Your back is perfectly all right," he reassured her. "But I mustn't tire you. When you are stronger you can tell me how it happened."

"I DON'T know myself unless Traff—" She paused abruptly, unwilling to cast suspicion, when she was uncertain, upon one of her profession. "How is Grandfather Sidral?" she asked hastily.

"I didn't tell him you were hurt. Didn't want to worry him. If I could help it, but since I'll have to stay longer than I expected I'll let him know now."

"Why should he worry about me?" she asked wonderingly.

"Why not, Madeline? You're the apple of his eye—"

Madeline! She had forgotten! He had come because he thought she was his cousin. Even with death so close, Madeline had kept up the masquerade. In her great joy at seeing him Donna had forgotten Bill did not know her real identity. He had come to her as a duty and she had thought—

Her icy fingers wriggled in his grasp. Bill loosened them and drew back, intuitively feeling that something was wrong. Yet what had he said to offend her? Certainly the mention of an old man's affection should not do that.

"I'll go now," he said, and arose. Her eyes were closed to hide the disappointment she felt.

At his feet lay Madeline's letter. He picked it up. "Yours," he said. "It hasn't been opened." He placed it on the bed near her hand. "Don't try to read until you are stronger. And don't worry about anything. I'll be here in the morning, but if there is anything you want in the meantime have them send for me. I'm at the Commercial House."

"You're very kind," she murmured, but there was nothing more than formal politeness in her tone. "I love him. I love him!" she moaned when the door closed behind him. "What shall I do?"

Her fumbling fingers tore open the flap of the letter. The words Madeline had scrawled danced crazily on the sheet but she could read enough to understand what they conveyed.

"I'll do it! I will be Madeline! It's her deception, not mine. What else can I do? Oh God, if this is a sin—don't punish me! Let him learn to love me! I love him so I can't send him out of my life. If this is wickedness, then I'm a wicked woman—but, oh, please God, give me my chance for love and happiness!"

Half-hysterical, with tears rolling down her cheeks, she tore the letter to shreds, then fainted with exhaustion.

DERBY RECORD MAY BE BROKEN ON FAST TRACK

Spectacular Race Is Expected Tomorrow at Louisville

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor,
BULLETIN

Louisville, May 3.—(AP)—The weather man today saw "occasional showers" in prospect for tomorrow, Derby Day.

Despite the perfect spring day, the weather office declined to promise a similar setting for the six-day running of the Kentucky racing classic, but admitted that the chances for fair weather when the race is called tomorrow are just about even.

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—(AP)—The beauty and the rivalry of the three-year-old thoroughbred world will race tomorrow for the honors that go with victory in the most famous stake on the American turf, the Kentucky Derby, but, take it or leave it, you can put down the tip from the betting man and the blacksmith at least one gentleman at the party will refuse to see the ladies home first.

Perhaps one or both of the popular equine beauties involved in this affair, Charles T. Fisher's Meta and Colonel Edward R. R. Bradley's more sedate Bazaar, will disprove the supposition of masculine superiority but the odds are against them. If a lady is to enjoy the thrills of triumph, it is more likely to be Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, New York and Florida sportswoman, whose crack colt Cavalade leads the 2 to 1 favorite, with his stable-mate, Time Clock. If something more convincing than the betting odds is required, there's the word of the blacksmith who will affix the light aluminum race plates to the twinkling hoofs of the Brookmade stable's pair. Up to now, he's been silent.

Smithy Backs Cavalade
"Oft or filly, there's no horse that can beat Cavalade in this Derby," he volunteers. "Boy and man, I have been putting plates on 'em for upwards of 30 years and I tell you there's no three-year-old as fast as this fellow today. Don't believe any of that stuff about his being nervous and jittery. He's just a big bully, that's what he is, and as fast as any horse I ever shod. He can go any distance on any kind of track. If it's muddy, so much the better."

This may be conclusive but it is by no means unanimous. Cavalade's last workout has satisfied the railbirds he is in good condition, fresh from two record performances in Maryland, but there is still a lively debate over what will happen when 14 or more three-year-olds battle for the victor's wreath of roses and the major part of $40,000 in the big race.

Record May Fall
On a fast track and under the proper competitive conditions, Twenty Grand's Derby record of 1:01 4-5 may be broken. Cavalade has the speed to do it. Matt Hart, a temperamental equine lass, has shown unusual flashes of racing form and may never be headed, if he breaks on top of the field. Peace Chance, trained in Kentucky to carry the hopes of Joseph W. Widener, chairman of the New York Jockey Club, broke Twenty

Gunning for a Gigolo

Hiding behind four weeks' hirsute growth, Primo Carnera trundled into New York from Moosehead Lake, Me., and forthwith answered Max Baer's uncompromising remarks about his ability with, "Ho! ho! I fear this gigolo good." Here's the champion trying to peer through his whiskers at the sights of a big-game gun.

Grand's mile record for Churchill Downs this week.

Others, including Norman W. Churchill's Ridiculous, and Alex Gordon's maiden colt, Sir Thomas, have shown fast speed. Mrs. Payne Whitney's English-bred Spy Hill, a late arrival and Alfred Vanderbilt's Discovery also have turned in performances that rate them among the leading contenders. Col. Bradley's filly, Bazaar, has worked the Derby route of one mile and a quarter in 2:05 or better and is coupled with Blue Again in the Kentucky's bid for a third successive Derby triumph.

One Filly Winner

Only one filly, Regret in 1915, has captured the Derby in 59 years and it is the ambition of the Bradley forces to duplicate this feat. A victory for Bazaar would be scarcely less startling than the triumph of the maiden colt.

Brokers' Tip in the Bradley colors in last year's spectacular finish, Don Meade, who won on Broker's Tip, will ride Bazaar.

The sixtieth running of the Derby bears all the earmarks of a comeback, except the added money has been cut from $50,000 to $30,000, the lowest since 1920. Reserved seats and boxes at the historic Downs, as well as all hotel accommodations in Louisville have been sold out for days. Railroad and airplane traffic is reported the heaviest in four years, so that the picturesque old track seems certain to be packed when the tingling strains of "My Old Kentucky Home" herald the parade past the stands tomorrow afternoon, around 5:15 P. M. (CST).

Jurges May Return to Lineup Monday: No Operation Now

Chicago, May 4.—(AP)—Billy Jurges, the Chicago Cubs' shortstop, who suffered a mild attack of appendicitis before yesterday's game with Boston, probably will be back in the lineup by next Monday.

Dr. John P. Davis, club physician, said Jurges was "out of danger as far as an operation is concerned," but will be kept under observation for another day or two.

FISH FOR NEW HATCHERY WILL BE MOVED SOON

Propagation Project at Amboy Completed and Given Approval

The new black bass hatchery constructed by members of the Green River Rod & Reel Club at Amboy, is completed and ready for use. The hatchery is located in a spring fed section of Green river southwest of Amboy, near the Edwards ice houses. Practically all of the labor on the building of the hatchery was donated by members of the club, which was organized this spring to protect game fish in Lee county.

F. D. Hunt of the Illinois Natural History Survey department was in Amboy Wednesday and inspected the hatchery after its completion, giving his approval of the plan. He highly commended the members of the club for the interest they have shown in the propagation and preservation program in Green river. Sufficient water is now in the pool to permit the stocking with the first fish, Mr. Hunt stated. The department he represents will deliver to the hatchery not later than next Monday approximately 500 blue gills and 125 small mouth black bass.

Pump Water From River

Recently there has been an insufficient supply of water to fill the pool. Lack of spring rains and the fact that some of the springs ceased to flow accounted for this condition. Other large springs in the vicinity of the hatchery, which have never been known to go dry, have ceased to flow. To overcome this and not lose this year's hatching and spawn, the club members extended their program and arranged to pump water from Green river into the hatching basins. The plan met with the approval of the state inspector when he assured the club officers that the fish would be delivered within a few days.

All members of the club are enthusiastic in the completion of the project and are even more elated to know that this season's efforts will not be entirely lost, in spite of lack of rains. Many members from Dixon and Mendota as well as Amboy will be notified of the exact time the fish are to be delivered, and afforded an opportunity to witness the stocking of the hatchery.

Kentucky's First Legal Title Bout in Ring This Eve

Louisville, Ky., May 4.—(AP)—The annual Derby eve fight program tonight is headed by Kentucky's first legal title bout in history, under provisions of the state's new boxing law which permits official decisions.

Freddie Miller, Cincinnati, featherweight champion, will defend his crown against Paul Dazzo, Chicago, challenger, over the 15-round route. Three judges will give the verdict.

It will be Miller's sixth defense of his title since he won it from Tommy Loughran in Madison Square Garden tonight — blond Walter Neusel of Germany.

For a time it looked as though the Philadelphia veteran would be a short-ender at 8 to 5, but the odds were shrinking rapidly today and indications were they would be at even money by the time the former light heavyweight champion and his youthful rival enter the ring for their ten round battle.

Neusel packs a fairly healthy wallop, is hard to hurt and has plenty of strength and stamina, but veteran critics doubt whether he is ready yet for such a master craftsman as Loughran.

Both Primo Carnera, the heavyweight champion, and Max Baer, who will fight Primo for the title here June 14, think Tommy will win, Baer emphatically so.

"Loughran will blind the big Dutchman," says Max. "He pokes left hands into your face until you begin to think someone's trying to smother you with a leather blanket. I'd like to know as much as that fellow's forgotten about boxing."

Loughran gave Baer the worst licking of his life here three years ago.

Goldfinches Late Builders
The goldfinches are among the latest of our native birds to build their nests, usually delaying this activity until August. It has been suggested that the reason for this is that these birds like to line their nests with a thick layer of thistle-down and this is not available earlier.

WILSON TELLS OF ORIGIN OF FRISCH FIGHT

Former Card Catcher's Version of Dispute Told Today

St. Louis, May 4.—(AP)—One side of the story of how Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Wilson, one-time pals, fell out after Frisch became manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, was told today.

It was Wilson's version of the feud. Frisch had nothing to say. "All I know," said Wilson, now manager of the Philadelphia Nationals, "is that Frisch, right after being named manager, held a meeting and told us all he was going to run the club and wanted no suggestions from anyone. Right after that I was taken out of the game for reasons unknown to me."

"Later while we were playing a game in Pittsburgh, an argument arose at the plate. The usual crowd assembled and I went up to the plate from the dugout and said a few words to Manager Gibson. Then Frisch turned to me and told me to get back on the bench and that he could run the game with or without me, or words to that effect. I told Frisch a few things and that's the last that was said between us."

Wilson was traded to the Phillies during the winter for catcher Spud Davis and subsequently was named manager of the club, succeeding Burt Shotton, now a Cincinnati coach.

QUIMET GIVES MEMBERS TEAM SPECIAL CLUB

Designed to Simplify Approach Shots on St. Andrews

St. Andrews, Scotland, May 4.—(AP)—In a diplomatic way, Captain Francis Quimet has suggested to his Walker Cup golfing teammates that a special technique is called for in approach shots at St. Andrews where the international matches with the British will be played next Friday and Saturday.

In practice, nearly every member of the American team has been losing several strokes a round on full approach shots which skid over the stone-like surfaces of the greens and skip into rough or cavernous traps.

Yesterday Quimet presented each member of his team with a "runner-up" club, made especially to Quimet's order and bearing his name. The club is designed to simplify approaching problems at St. Andrews.

Dundee Turns Back Another Challenger

Paterson, N. J., May 4.—(AP)—For the second time since he won his middleweight title, Vince Dundee has succeeded in turning back a challenger.

In a 15 round championship engagement last night, Dundee demonstrated his ability at the expense of 20-year-old Ad Diamond of Paterson.

Dundee, blazing away through the 15-rounds with a potent right hand blow to his opponent's left side, won at least 11 rounds. The referee gave him that number, presented one, the third, to the challenger and called the other three even.

Let This Be a Warning, Girls

Two black eyes here preach an eloquent sermon to girls who succumb to the lure of fascinating strangers. A hitchhike "honeymoon" without benefit of clergy ended for Vivian Mason, 19, in a New Orleans hospital, after she had been beaten by Gaylord Rice because she would not aid him in a robbery. She fled with Rice from Wall Lake, Mich., where her father is an evangelist. Rice, who has a wife in Memphis, pleaded guilty to Mann act violation.

Ashton Soft Ball Team to Play Two Contests This Eve

The Ashton soft ball team of the National major league, will play two games this evening at the Kersten lighted field in Ashton. The Wink's Specials of this city will play one of the double header games the Harvard, Ill., team opposing Ashton in the second game.

Nest in Thorns for Safety

Above the cholla cactus flats, throughout both the thorny mesquite, catclaw and lode slopes leading up to the Santa Rita mountains seen from Tucson, you find cactus wren nests, "the most conspicuous ornithological features of the landscape." Their large straw-colored, retort-shaped forms stand out strikingly though well protected by an armament of thorns from hawks, owls and other enemies. Of 64 found in thorn-clad bushes or trees, says Nature Magazine, 35 were additionally safeguarded by being hidden inside thick round clumps of the red-flowered mistletoe, whose berries offer desert food to the black phainopepla.

Many Deserting Seamen Live Illegally in U. S.

There is no doubt that there are a great many deserting seamen who are living illegally in the United States, says the Boston Herald. So long as a man leads a law-abiding life and can support himself, his standing might be concealed for a lifetime.

The immigration officials make it worth the while of the ship companies to see that their men do not desert. The crew of every alien ship that comes into the harbor is carefully inspected, and the inspectors use their judgment as to the likelihood of desertion. Seamen who appear to be deserters are required to stay on board. For every alien who is missing from a ship's crew at sailing time, the line is fined $1,000. A sailor who costs his line $1,000 would presumably have a hard time getting a job with that line again. The ship's officers, and the seamen who have been with the same line for a long time, are therefore better risks than those of more migratory habits. And some ships are considered bad risks because of a record for desertion.

Before the coming of the oil lamp, lighthouses were lit by candles or coal fires. The last of the latter was the lighthouse at St. Bees, where a coal light burned until 1822.
